At Year's End

1962 brought many changes and more problems, nationally, internationally and locally. Business was good in 1962, despite a deterioration of relationships of business and government.

The stock market prices took a considerable drop during the year, in spite of usual earnings and stable dividends.

President Kennedy flexed his muscles, both at home and abroad, showing the great potential power of the office of President of the United States.

Congress refused to support federal aid to education and medicare, two programs which were endorsed by the President and the administration. Both of these proposals will be renewed in the coming congress, to be sure, and possibly the administration will continue to propose them in the hope of beating down opposition.

Talk of reduction in taxes is heard from several sides, but spending increases and the budget is well out of balance if not out of hand. Taxes continue to rise. Income from taxes, even so called social security taxes, find their way into the general Treasury funds, regardless of which the expenses of government are not met.

War did not come in 1962, and we may hope and pray that as much may be said when 1963 wanes.

Cuba continues to be a pressing problem, now definitely a satellite of Russia, and a base for air and submarine operations, which may be used against the nations of the western hemisphere. Unrest continues in South America.

The Congo is as explosive as a year ago. At year's end the United Nations had troops in Katanga and Tshombe had fled his palace. The U. S. supports military action by the U. N. against the only province of the Congo, which is anti-Communist with a stable government.

Outer space was again explored by U. S. astronauts on two occasions, and by Russia. Telstar, an artificial satellite was launched by the U. S. A., by means of which messages and television receptions were had from Europe.

The Yankees won the world series in baseball again and the Green Bay Packers won the NFL football championship.

State-federal relationships deteriorated, especially in the racial field, with 43,000 army troops being sent to "Old Miss", the University of Mississippi, to force a Negro applicant into the student body.

The year was fairly free from labor stoppages. At year's end, no major New York newspaper had been published for about 15 weeks due to a printers' strike, and all shipping was idled on the Eastern Seaboard by longshoreman's strike —neither of which showed immediate hopes of settlement.

These are but a few of the happenings of the past year recalled off-hand at this year's end.

Babson Discusses Electronics

BABSON PARK, MASS., Dec. 20 — If I were now in high school and had a mechanical "finger" I would learn all I could about electronics.

Electricity in 1894

Mr. Edison had then only just invented his incandescent bulb lamps so common today. There was a "Gloucester Electric Co." which had a dynamo in the rear of a machine shop. It had strung wires to prominent street corners where a carbon lamp hung to light the square. This lamp consisted of two round carbon "rods" which were renewed each morning by the one employee of the little "company."

I then developed a tiny business of installing electric door bells, working only on Saturdays. I used two "wet" batteries, which I located in the cellar of the home. There were no "dry" batteries, or any kind of electrical appliances such as washing machines or electric irons. Radio and TV had not been even dreamed of.

"Wireless" Was Unknown

The greatest invention in my youth was Mr. Marconi's sending of a message, or signal, without wires. This we read of in our daily newspaper. "The Gloucester Breeze." In 1892 the electric company created by Mr. Edison joined with that of Mr. Houston, starting the General Electric Company in an old bowling alley at Lynn, Mass. This company was then making dynamos and other equipment for the new electric light plants starting all over the United States.

These plants used only direct electric current: alternating current had not been invented for use in transmission. My humpback friend, Charles Steinmetz, was the first to make this useful for transformers. Only then did the Electrical Age, which has since developed so tremendously, grow.

The Electronic Age

If any reader will take a 12" ruler and mark off 12 electromagnetic bands, he will get the secret of electronics. The first known band at the top will be 2" wide and contain the cosmic rays, which are the very shortest: these fill the room in which you are now sitting. The second band will be about an inch wide and comes from the sunspots. They are tricky and dangerous. The third band consists of x-rays such as are used in hospitals for taking pictures of your insides. The fourth band is made up of ultra-violet rays. The above bands (except the first) would take about one inch each of the "ruler." Then we would have a band of visible light (the main band used in our present great Electrical Age), only one-eighth inch wide. The other bands are useful in the Electronic Age which we are just entering.

Below is a band that represents the infra-red rays, which are used to help those suffering from arthritis and similar pains. Then we come to two more important bands, each about one-half inch wide. Following these is the radar band, which is about one and one-half inches wide, although we never heard of radar before World War II. This gives us nine bands using a total of eight and one-eighth inch was used before World War II. Then follow the television and radio bands, and a band reaching out into the unknown. Someday more will be discovered and harnessed, with marvelous possibilities in the Electronic Age

Looking Into the Future

Just as radio has brought talking and television brings pictures into your home, the Electronic Age will bring heat, light, taste, smell, and perhaps memory and many other things. Coal, oil, gas, and other natural resources will be used for more valuable purposes instead of being burned up. Tremendous changes are coming. We are as backward as when I was a boy with only electric door bells!

Furthermore, I realize that I have not mentioned the possibilities of atomic power and the wonderful latent wealth in uranium oxide. Nor gravity, being studied at New Boston, N. H. This would give free power to every city. I hope we will recognize that these gifts come from God Almighty, to whom we should be very thankful.

P. S. A brochure outlining career opportunities in electronics has just been published Entitled "Electronics — Your Chance To Share the Future," it is available from Electronic Industries Association, 1721 De Sales Street, N. W., Washington 6, D. C., at 20 cents a copy.

Feed The Birds

EXCESSIVE cold, sleet and snow make life miserable for song birds and game birds. They need our help.

For your song birds, fill a half a grapefruit hull with seed and put in the crotch of a tree. Birds will like this dish.

A little consideration for the feathered friends now will pay dividends when spring comes. Feed the birds.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Council Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible Material: Mark 1:1-13.
Devotional Reading: 1 Timothy 4:7-16, 14-16.

Ready, When?

Lesson for January 6, 1963

The same man or woman will be admired by different people for different reasons. Our Lord was no exception. What is it in Jesus that draws, as He said, "all men" to himself? It is now as it was then. Not every one would say the same. The four Gospels are not alike, and one reason they are not alike is that the four evangelists (writers of the gospels) found different aspects of Jesus' life and thought challenging and compelling. Mark, from whose short book these Bible studies for the next three months are to be taken, was drawn to Jesus on account of what he did rather than what He said. Jesus is here introduced to us as the mighty Son of God, who demonstrated His right to be Master of Men by His acts of power. Jesus had a meek and gentle side; but there is not much in Mark about a meek and gentle Jesus; rather about the kind of character that became one of the Romans among whom the book first circulated, Jesus the Mighty One.

Not by Ace, not by Books

When is a man ready to go out and begin his life's work? Many young people begin too soon. They drop out of high school and get married, they are burdened with the cares of a job (or trying to find one) and a family at a time when they should still be preparing for such responsibilities. Others keep on "preparing" because they are acutely afraid to go out and get into the swing and the fight of living. A person is not necessarily ready when he has read a certain number of books. A book, many books, can help handily in preparing those who read them for active useful living; but a young man may have put his nose into many books without ever having put his mind into any one of them. In many books is much knowledge, but in many books may be little wisdom. Age by itself will not prepare a youth for living. In two states young people can legally vote at the age of 18 (in two others, 19 and 20; and in all the rest, 21. The theory is that anybody old enough to fight is old enough to vote. But is this true? Does any one suppose that every boy or girl just turned 21 is suddenly endowed with the sense and the ability to make the serious choices demanded of a good voter? Mere years will not bring wisdom.

The Call of God

Jesus of Nazareth, be it remembered, was not a bookish man. He knew His Bible, but there is no evidence that He had attended any of the great schools of that day. His "ignorance" was always thrown up to Him by those who failed to "see" Him. Furthermore, Jesus was what some would call overage before he embarked on his life-work. He was 30 years old before beginning to preach. Book-wise, He was less than ready: age-wise, He was more than ready. But He considered these things (if at all) as being far down the list of indispensables. Jesus did not enter on His life-work until He was convinced that He had a divine call. Now the call of God comes to people in various ways. But surely it stands to reason that no matter what you know or have experienced, if you set out on a course God does not want you to take, you are headed for real failure.

The Voice of the Tempter

There was once a dedicated woman missionary. On her furloughs in the states she would go from college to college, looking for those who had volunteered to go as foreign missionaries. She would talk to these young people, and try as hard as she could to persuade them not to go. She turned more than 200 away in this fashion: but those who could not be discouraged were the ones she was looking for. They were the ready ones. Now it is necessary to hear the voice of God (which may well come to us in the voice of a friend or loved one) before we are actually prepared for our life's work great or small as God wills, it is also well that we should listen (as Jesus had to) to the voice tempting us to do something else, anything else but what God calls us to do. Only those are truly ready who have learned to say NO to the Evil One.

THE TIMES - VIRGINIAN
Appomattox, Virginia

Dear Sir:

I want to congratulate the lady who reported the speech that I made to the 4-H Achievement Banquet on December 14. Rarely have I had a public utterance reported in the newspaper so accurately. I am grateful and I would like for the writer to know this.

Sincerely yours,
Orville W. Wake
President

Times-Virginian Office,
Appomattox, Va.

Dear Sir,

I thank you for reminding me of my paper because I don't want to miss a single copy, as I enjoy reading it very much. I hope you and all in there will have a very Merry Christmas and a Prosperous New Year.
Yours Truly,

Mrs. Juddy Glover
Madison Heights, Va.

Dear Mr. Vaughan:

I used to live in Appomattox. But I liver over in Lynnhaven, Va., now. But I always love to get your TIMES VIRGINIAN. It brings back lots of good things for me to read about my friends I have known for so long. I think you are doing a wonderful job. Keep up the good work. A faithful reader of Times Virginian.

Mrs. Rosa Ferguson

Mr. W. Lloyd Vaughan,
Times Virginian,
Appomattox, Va.

Dear Mr. Vaughan:

We have a problem here in Appomattox County and I guess the same condition prevails throughout the U. S. I thought you would be interested and would probably like to help relieve the populace of the ignorance by giving publicity to a recently enacted bill passed by the U. S. Congress. This Act is known as "Federal Hazardous Substance Labeling Act", and I believe it was passed by the last session of the 87th congress.

This law requires that any container used for carrying gasoline, kerosene or varnish remover ing fluid be labeled showing its contents. I believe there was no publicity given to the enactment of this bill and, as a result, it is causing confusion and misunderstanding. Many people believe that the merchant is making his own rules when he informs them that it is necessary for their container to be labeled.

I am a subscriber to the magazine "The Humble Extra", a monthly magazine published by Humble Oil Co. I have found the information in this publication to always be reliable. This is the source of my information.

Another annoying condition with which we are faced is the Sunday Blue Law. There are still people, believe it or not, who claim that they never heard of such a law.

We remain open Sundays primarily to allow people to have weekly outing by furnishing them with gasoline. Many people have no idea as to what can be sold on Sunday. As a consequence, we are continually faced with the problem of educating and explaining. I do not know if anything worthwhile can be done about this but I submit it to you for what it is worth.

Thanking you, I am

Sincerely yours.

Dear Mrs. Stimpson:

We were so pleased to see our pictures in the paper. Dec. 20th. Thank you very, very, much. We think your's nice to give us front page publicity.

Our little program was very good. Mrs. Gunter was pleased.

Thanks Again,
Yours truly,

Babson's Business And Financial Forecast For 19

and your husband (or wife) when you may need to rent later to buy real estate or start a business of your own.

Cuban Outlook

I forecast that the Cuban problem will not be settled in 1963. It may extend until after the 1964 presidential elections. The Russians have removed their missile installations and bombers from Cuba, in accordance with President Kennedy's demands. In return, Mr. Khrushchev will undoubtedly want some concession in Berlin, or in Turkey — which now builds up Russia in the winter due to Turkey's control of the Dardanelles.

Khrushchev must placate his people at home by improving rather than reducing their standard of living. I saw this very clearly when I was in Moscow. He helped Castro and so that he would have something to trade with the United States, either in connection with Berlin or with our bases which we now have in Europe. Khrushchev expected to later withdraw from Cuba when he first decided to help Castro. He knew Russia could continue to use Cuba as a base for Russian submarines. Now both Khrushchev and Castro are looking to Russia at home.

Some think the Cuban fracas will make President Kennedy more popular with the people of the United States, but I disagree. Labor leaders may be more emboldened in their demands, but they will continue to have friends at the White House.

Labor, Profit Margin

Readers should realize that the steel workers can reopen their wage contract after May 1, 1963. The settlement of this contract will be very likely to influence other labor disputes depending largely on international conditions.

I feel that our country is becoming "immune" to crises, believing that the cold war will continue for ever and ever. There, however, will be no nuclear war within our generation; and no international war of any kind in 1963.

What should begin to realize in 1963 that wages finally depend of profit. The year 1962 has seen profit squeezes close down because of their slight margin. Small businessmen — both manufacturers and retailers — must have a larger margin of profit in order to exist. There are too many mergers into bigger units and too many failures of worthy employers. Labor leaders are largely responsible for his unfortunate development and are slowly pricing themselves out of business. Sooner or later this can result in much unemployment. A tax cut will not solve this difficulty.

Commodity Prices

Nineteen-sixty-three will see many basic commodities sell for lower prices. Despite domestic production cutbacks for many raw materials world supplies will continue their uptrend. These surpluses in world markets will place additional downward pressure on commodity prices in the U. S. There will be exceptions in hybrid corn, Idaho seed potatoes, and other selected crops. Much depends upon the weather and the ability to hold over surpluses.

Prices of peaches, apples, citrus and other fruits depend principally upon the weather. Improvements in canning, freezing, and storage have been greatly advanced, while the big supermarkets have been beneficial in stabilizing prices. The hope of the fruit growers rests in cooperative advertisements in the newspapers and other media.

Certain basic chemicals will surely decline in price due to over production and competition from imports. The U. S. Justice Department claims to be working for consumers in its fights with many companies such as the dairy concerns, but in the end supply and demand will determine the realist and not legislation or court decisions.

Taxes, Inflation

Before the Kennedy Administration retires, I forecast that we will have either more taxes or more inflation. Neither, however, need come in 1963. The stock market may discount the expected inflation by temporarily continuing above 600 on he Dow Jones Average, and try as hard as she could to persuade them not to go. She turned more than 200 away in this fashion: but those who could not be discouraged were the ones she was looking for. They were the ready ones. Now it is necessary to hear the voice of God (which may well come to us in the voice of a friend or loved one) before we are actually prepared for our life's work great or small as God wills, it is also well that we should listen (as Jesus had to) to the voice tempting us to do something else, anything else but what God calls us to do. Only those are truly ready who have learned to say NO to the Evil One.

(Based on outlines copyrighted by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. Released by Community Press Service.)

The dollar will not be devalued in 1963, although the Wall Street and Lombard Street brokers put out propaganda to the contrary.

Now, a final word with regard to gold. The United States will continue to lose gold on balance during 1963. The only way to prevent it in 1963 is for us to export more goods and import less. This would require certain sacrifice on the part of our people.

Since my trip to Africa, I have concluded that answer is producing more gold rather than leaving it underground. If gold had a free market, production would increase naturally and it would then present one of the safest and most profitable investments available today. Another may be uranium oxide.

Of course, large quantities of gold may be found on the face of the moon — which brings me to my final subject, which I hope readers will take seriously.

To The Moon

Nobody will reach the moon in 1963 or in 1964, but you see more and more about it in the newspapers during 1963 and 1964. Do not think that United States will be the only country preparing for this project. Russia, England, Germany, and possibly China are preparing today to go to the moon. With labor getting costs for a twelve-hour day trip and with booster engines purchasable abroad, China will be the first to get to the moon. She does not need to be a member of the United Nations in order to send a rocket with three men to the moon and return. China's trip to the moon will be financed by foreign capital. China will win the territorial war with India and ultimately get Burma.

Buying of "going to the moon" stocks may become a very active speculation. The organized boosters will be paid for by the government, but their operation will be left for profit. The situation may come to a head with our great "gold rush" in 1849. However, it will not be limited to gold, but will also include diamonds, platinum and perhaps other elements which are not yet in our chemical books. My great-grandfather and were all seafaring men taking people from New England down the East Coast of South America around the Horn and up the Pacific Coast — a trip of months. The astronauts say they can make the trip to moon easily in less than days. The final thought: If Kennedy Administration gets much of a jam between and inflation, the promotion trips to the moon may them out of their troubles, enticing private capital which is now in need of some attractive investments, I might even bring about another big stock market boom in the late Sixties.

IN MEMORIAM

GRISHAW: In sad but loving remembrance of our darling daughter and sister, Nancy Leigh Grishaw, who departed this life one year ago today, Dec. 31, 1961.

They say that time heals all sorrow,
And helps us to forget;
But dear Nancy, time so far has
Only proven how much we miss you yet.

Sadly missed by Mother, Daddy
Brother and Sisters. Mr. and
Mrs. Fred Grishaw and Family. 1-3-1p

To each and everyone who was so kind in their expression of sympathy at the loss of my husband, I want to say thank you. For the cards, flowers, food, use of cars and all kindnesses, my heartfelt appreciation is yours. Mrs. W. T. Covington. 1-3-1t

In sad but, sweet memory of my beloved husband, Mr. Roland Ferguson, who passed away one year ago today, December 26, 1961.

A dearly husband, gone from me.
A voice I loved is still.
There's a vacant place in my heart.
Which never can be filled.
I do not need a special day,
To bring you to my mind.
For the days, I do not think of you are hard to find.
God saw the road was getting rough.
The hills too hard to climb.
So, He gently closed your weary eyes.
And whispered, Peace, Be thine.
His Devoted Wife
Mrs. Rosa Ferguson 1-3-1t

Card Of Thanks

"THANK YOU" To our many friends, neighbors and relatives we wish to say "thank you from deep down in our hearts" for your love and kindness to us during our shut - in days. Your visits and thoughtfulness have meant so much to us all through this years. Not only do we thank you for what you "shared" but for what you "cared". And then all the nice things you did for us for Christmas . . . you all have been wonderful. How can we say thank you so that you wil understand how great is our gratitude? Best wishes for the New Year. Mrs. A. B. Abbitt, Mrs. Addie Jenkin . 1-3-1t
